International Voluntary Camps I participated in were organized by Serbian Voluntary Service (Mladi Istraživači Srbije). Camps were dedicated to environment preserving and improving the living conditions of the local population. I was included in helping local organizers and camp leaders to organize and coordinate events. Volunteering activities empowered me to work with other people, and find solutions that will solve some group problem. They helped me develop communication skills with people who do not speak English as their native language.
